- Immediate, on-demand access to innovative and tested solutions
- Continuous learning throughout every stage of the consulting life-cycle, from just getting started to managing a mature business

"I get a LOT from my WIC membership: immediate access to information, insight, friendship & collaboration" - CELESTE BISHOP

2

ADVICE

- Opportunities to collaborate with other professionals whose skills augment yours
- Insight into what works and what doesn't, shortening the agony of trial and error
- Whole-life support, from attorney and accountant recommendations to insurance and childcare options to help finding a book, a good phone, or the right gift for a 10-year-old

"I'm a RAVING fan of WIC and have recommended it to my colleagues"

- NORINA SHARPE

COMMUNITY

- Opportunities to collaborate with other professionals whose skills augment yours
- Insight into what works and what doesn't, shortening the agony of trial and error
- Whole-life support, from attorney and accountant recommendations to insurance and childcare options

"I've developed some great client relationships by responding to the WIC email list"

- SUE KEARNEY

In late 1997, Eileen LaPorte, the founder and first president of WIC, organized a small network of long-time consultants who could benefit from collaborating in consulting engagements and sharing best practices in their own businesses. Originally called SEWN, the Self-Employed Women's Network, WIC was born at the first official meeting in January 1998. Today, Women in Consulting is a dynamic organization of seasoned consultants and small business owners covering a range of specialties.
